

Year 3-4 week ending 10.3.23

English: Following instructions can be tricky too. This week we have been following instructions, improving instructions and checking to see how good our instructions were.

Prepositions have helped our writing and we continue to practice them too.

Handwriting is a focus as we aim to make each piece of work our best. We are trying to start all of work at the margin, underline with a ruler and make our punctuation accurate. It's really hard but we are getting better.

Grams and kilogrammes have challenged us this week. We have weighed, balanced, converted and solved problems. Reading scales were tricky at the start and year 4 have a very puzzling end to the week as we ordered and compared our values.

Not all volcanoes are the same! We have explored what happens when a volcano explodes, labelling a diagram of our earth to help us.

We were surprised by how little notice some people received before they had to evacuate their homes. What one thing would you take with you?

Ears – who knew that an ear had so many parts. We have looked at diagrams of our inner ear and investigated how it works.

We have found out how we convert a vibration into sound.

We also explored the word amplify and were very surprised at how we listened to music before computers!

Please continue to practice times tables, through rock stars, super movers or your games – it's so important and makes a huge difference to our learning in maths.
